

Independent provider agreement

Cleaner and beauty provider contract draft | Original draft for review

Parties and effective date

This agreement is between [HOMLLE LEGAL ENTITY, NUMBER AND ADDRESS] (Homlle) and [PROVIDER LEGAL NAME, ADDRESS AND BUSINESS DETAILS] (Provider), effective from [DATE]. Schedule A must be completed and accepted with this agreement. This draft assumes Homlle supplies services to its customers and engages the Provider to perform accepted bookings. It must not be used unchanged for an agency model or an employment relationship.

1. Appointment and status

Subject to approval for the relevant service, Homlle may offer bookings and the Provider may accept or decline them. No minimum volume, exclusivity or guaranteed earnings is promised. The Provider may work for others. Accepted bookings create the agreed delivery obligation, subject to the safety and cancellation provisions below.

The parties intend an independent business relationship where that reflects reality. This label does not remove statutory rights or determine tax or employment status. Homlle will assess actual arrangements and use appropriate documentation if worker or employee rights arise. Nothing requires the Provider to waive rights that cannot lawfully be waived.

2. Eligibility and accurate information

The Provider must supply accurate identity, contact, service qualification and insurance information, notify material changes, and complete checks lawfully required for the actual role. Uploaded documents are not approval. Homlle will explain outstanding requirements and make a separate service-specific activation decision. Only qualifications and licences relevant to approved services may be relied upon.

Credentials must not be falsified, borrowed or shared. An expired policy, changed work entitlement or restriction on a treatment must be reported before accepting affected work. Homlle must apply checks consistently, fairly and with appropriate data protection, not assume that every role is eligible for an enhanced criminal-record check.

3. Accepting and performing bookings

Before acceptance, Homlle will disclose scope, location information appropriate to that stage, appointment time, expected duration, materials responsibilities and Provider remuneration including disclosed deductions. The Provider must assess whether they can deliver safely and competently. Significant scope changes require a recorded agreement on price and time; do not pressure customers into extras.

The Provider selects appropriate working methods within the agreed outcome, lawful requirements and documented safety controls. Attend at the agreed time, communicate delays, follow the agreed checklist, protect property and maintain respectful conduct. Do not perform specialist, invasive, medical or otherwise excluded work outside the approved catalogue. Stop unsafe work and contact the designated support route.

4. Substitution and assistants

A proposed substitute or assistant must have the right skills, permissions, insurance and required checks for the service. Give Homlle enough information to assess those objective requirements and arrange customer notice and access safely. Homlle may reject a person who does not meet them. No one may use another person's login, access codes or credentials. OWNER/LEGAL REVIEW: Confirm whether a genuine substitution right exists in practice and how responsibility and payment work; a paper clause must not misrepresent the operating model.

5. Fees, tax and payments

Schedule A specifies whether remuneration is a fixed amount, hourly rate or other agreed calculation, together with VAT, expenses, travel, materials, any Homlle fee, tips and payout timing. No new deduction applies to an already accepted booking without a lawful basis and agreement where required. Do not charge the customer directly for an amount already collected by Homlle.

Where the Provider is genuinely self-employed, they are responsible for their own applicable tax reporting and business records. Homlle remains responsible for its own legal reporting and withholding duties. Any self-billing arrangement requires a separate compliant agreement. A payout depends on an approved payment account and lawful settlement conditions; saving an invoice template is not proof of payout readiness.

Homlle will provide a clear statement of completed bookings, adjustments, disputed amounts and payments. A payment query may be raised through [PAYMENT SUPPORT]. Any temporary hold must have a specific proportionate reason, notice where lawful, review date and challenge route. Undisputed sums should not be held merely because a separate amount is disputed. No open-ended or automatic penalty deduction is created by this draft.

6. Cancellations, illness and interruption

Notify Homlle promptly if unable to attend an accepted booking, so alternatives can be considered. Do not work while unable to do so safely. OWNER DECISION: approve notice and rescheduling rules and any lawful, proportionate treatment of demonstrable losses. Refusing an unsafe instruction or making a good-faith safety report must not itself attract a penalty. Homlle cancellations and customer no-access cases will be assessed under the disclosed remuneration schedule, not an undisclosed rule.

7. Equipment, insurance and safety

Use appropriate maintained equipment and authorised products; follow relevant assessments and manufacturer instructions. Schedule A identifies who supplies consumables and protective equipment. Report defects, exposure, injury, near misses and damage promptly. The Provider must maintain the service-specific insurance agreed in Schedule A and disclose exclusions that affect the work. Insurance does not remove either party's legal responsibilities or mean every claim will be paid.

8. Confidentiality and personal data

Use customer and business information only for the authorised booking and lawful records. Do not export customer lists, retain entry codes in personal notes, post home photographs publicly or use details for unrelated marketing. Protect devices and accounts, limit access, and report suspected loss or misuse immediately to [PRIVACY CONTACT]. Confidentiality does not prevent lawful reporting, protected disclosures or obtaining professional advice.

Privacy roles must be assessed for each activity. The Provider may be a separate controller for some legally required business records; where acting solely on Homlle's instructions as a processor, a completed processing agreement is required. Do not assume this contract makes all processing lawful or authorises health/criminal-record data use.

9. Reviews, ranking and fair decisions

Homlle's approved ranking policy will explain inputs, weights, sample limits, weekly review cycle and appeal rights. Higher ranks may receive greater priority for suitable job offers; no number of jobs is guaranteed. Missing data is not poor performance. Serious substantiated safety breaches can affect the overall rank, not only one category. Allegations require fair review, and urgent protective restrictions must be distinguished from final findings.

Homlle will give the Provider a reasonable opportunity to respond to concerns, correct inaccurate records and challenge material ranking, suspension or termination decisions through [APPEAL CONTACT]. Customer satisfaction does not require accepting unsafe, discriminatory or out-of-scope demands.

10. Liability and disputes

Each party is responsible for loss caused by its own breach or negligence to the extent required by law. No provision excludes liability that cannot lawfully be excluded. This draft contains no unlimited one-way indemnity or automatic recovery from earnings. LEGAL/INSURANCE REVIEW: agree any appropriate commercial cap and exceptions in Schedule A after examining the real risks and cover; without an agreed provision, ordinary law applies.

Raise disputes promptly with supporting information. Parties should attempt a documented resolution and consider mediation without restricting mandatory rights or access to courts. The proposed governing law is England and Wales, subject to applicable mandatory protections and final jurisdiction review.

11. Ending or changing the agreement

Either party may end future participation on [AGREED NOTICE]. Accepted bookings should be resolved safely with customer communication. Homlle may temporarily restrict affected services for a credible urgent safety, fraud or legal concern and review promptly; termination for a serious substantiated breach must include reasons where lawful and an appeal route. Ending access does not cancel accrued payment rights or justify retaining unnecessary personal data.

Material changes require advance notice, an accessible copy and fresh acceptance where needed. Do not backdate acceptance. Retain the version applying to each booking. On termination, return keys and equipment, revoke access, reconcile payments and securely return/delete information subject to lawful retention.
